Genesis 1–2

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 1

In Genesis 1, God makes the heavens and the earth. At the start the earth has no shape and is covered in water and darkness. God speaks, and things come to be. On the first three days he makes empty places: light and dark, then sky and sea, then dry land and plants. On the next three days he fills them: sun, moon and stars for the day and night; fish and birds for the sea and sky; animals and people for the land. God makes people in his own image and tells them to care for the earth and the animals. Then God looks at everything he has made and calls it very good. On the seventh day he rests. Genesis 2 then looks closer at that sixth day: God forms the first man from the dust of the ground and breathes life into him, plants a garden in Eden for him to work and keep, and brings the animals to him to be named. Seeing that the man is alone, God makes a woman from the man's own side, and the two become one family — “one flesh.”

CHAPTER SUMMARY

Ch.

What happens

The Seven Days — The earth begins dark, deep and without shape. God speaks and light comes. Days one, two and three make room: day and night, sky and water, then dry land with plants and seeds. Days four, five and six fill that room: lights in the sky, fish and birds, then land animals and people. God makes people in his own image, male and female, and gives them the job of caring for the earth. He calls everything he has made very good. On the seventh day he stops working and rests.

The Garden — A closer look at the sixth day. God forms the man from the dust of the ground and breathes life into him. He plants a garden in Eden, with a river running through it, and puts the man there to work it and take care of it. God brings the animals to the man, who names them — but none of them is a fitting partner for him. So God makes a woman from the man's side, and the two are joined as one family.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

WORD STUDY · MAKING AND SORTING Look at what kind of words these chapters are made of.

Genesis 1 has making words: create means to make something new, and separate means to put two things apart. Genesis 2 zooms in and uses closer, hands-on words: to form something is to shape it, the way a potter shapes clay, and breath is the air that makes something alive. Learning both sets of words helps you see how the two chapters work together, one wide and fast, the other close and slow. A garden is where all of it happens — ground that has been made, sorted, and now cared for by hand.

create (v.)

Gen 1:1

To make something new

"The first line of the Bible says that God created the heavens and the earth."

separate (v.)

Gen 1:4

To put two things apart from each other

"God separated the light from the dark, and called them day and night."

bless (v.)

Gen 1:28

To wish or give someone good things, especially from God

"God blessed them and told them to be fruitful and multiply."

image (n.)

Gen 1:27

A picture or likeness of something

"The chapter says people were made in the image of God."

form (v.)

Gen 2:7

To shape or make something by hand

"The LORD God formed the man from the dust of the ground."

breath (n.)

Gen 2:7

The air a living thing takes in and lets out

"God breathed into the man's nostrils the breath of life."

garden (n.)

Gen 2:8

Ground where plants are grown and cared for

"God planted a garden in a place called Eden."

Understanding

Show you understood what happens in Genesis 1–2.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

BIBLE STUDY SKILL · SPOTTING A PATTERN When a chapter says almost the same thing over and over, that is a clue, not a mistake. Try this. Write the six days in two short columns, days 1 to 3 on the left and days 4 to 6 on the right. Light and dark sit beside sun and moon. Sky and sea sit beside birds and fish. Land and plants sit beside animals and people. The left column makes an empty place. The right column fills it. Genesis 2 uses a different trick with the sixth day: it stops and looks closely instead of repeating. Finding a pattern, and noticing when a writer breaks one on purpose, are things a good Bible reader learns to do.

What is the earth like at the very start of the chapter?

- ☐ (A) dark, deep water with no shape
- ☐ (B) a dry desert with no water
- ☐ (C) a green field full of animals
- ☐ (D) a city with no people in it

2 What is the first thing God makes?

☐ A the animals

☐ B the sun

☐ C dry land

☐ D light

3 In Genesis 2, what does God use to form the man?

☐ A water from the river

☐ B one of his ribs

☐ C light from the sky

☐ D dust from the ground

4 What is made on the sixth day?

☐ A the sea and the sky

☐ B the stars

☐ C land animals and people

☐ D the plants

5 Write the numbers 1–5 in the boxes to show the correct order across Genesis 1–2. Number 1 = what happens first.

God says “Let there be light,” and there is light.

God plants a garden in a place called Eden.

The earth is dark and covered with water.

God makes a woman from the man’s own side.

God forms the man from the dust of the ground.

Literary Craft

Understanding HOW and WHY Genesis 1–2 tells the story of creation twice, two different ways.

  Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

LITERARY CRAFT · WIDE LENS, CLOSE LENS Genesis 1 and Genesis 2 are not two different stories.

They are one story told twice, in two different ways. Genesis 1 moves fast through the whole week, like a list: day one, day two, day three, all the way to day seven. Genesis 2 does something different. It slows all the way down and looks closely at just one part of day six — the man, the garden, the animals, the woman — like a scene instead of a line in a list. Zoom out, then zoom in. Both are true, and both are needed to see the whole picture.

PATTERN

Something that repeats. Genesis 1 repeats the same shape every day: God speaks, it happens, God sees it is good, evening and morning.

STRUCTURE

The way a piece of writing is put together. Genesis 1 moves fast, like a list of seven days. Genesis 2 slows down and tells one day, the sixth, like a close-up scene.

REFRAIN

A line that comes back again and again, like a chorus in a song. “And God saw that it was good” is the refrain of Genesis 1.

1 Something that repeats again and again is a ____.

(A) refrain

(B) seed

(C) pattern

(D) creature

TRUE

4 Genesis 2 tells about the whole week, from day one to day seven.

TRUE

FALSE

5 What does Genesis 2 do that Genesis 1 does not?

- ☐ A it lists all seven days
- ☐ B it zooms in on just one day
- ☐ C it talks about the stars
- ☐ D it ends with the Sabbath

6 Why does the writer put the same words at the end of each day in Genesis 1?

- ☐ A to show that each day was hard work
- ☐ B because there were no other words to use
- ☐ C to make the days feel like one whole week
- ☐ D to help people count to seven

PART 4

Wisdom

Four deeper challenges — no single-word recall. Read, weigh the evidence, and reason it out.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

SCRIPTURE DISCOVERY · PLACES & GEOGRAPHY The first people to read Genesis lived in Canaan, where Israel is today — a thin strip of land on the eastern coast of the Mediterranean. A great sea lay to the west and a great desert to the east, with little room between. Rain fell in only one season, so towns were built wherever there was a spring or a well. That same geography matters for Genesis 2: the garden of Eden sits in this same world, watered by rivers the first readers knew. Keep that in mind as you read. A story that starts in dark water, makes dry land, and then plants a garden on it was speaking straight into the world its first readers lived in.

Read Genesis 1–2 in your Bible first. Then think about it. Genesis 1 is short but builds a whole world, fast. Genesis 2 slows all the way down and stays on just one day. Notice what each one is doing, and why the Bible needed both.

Land and Water in the Ancient Near East

The people who first read Genesis lived in Canaan — the same land where the country of Israel is today. It is a narrow strip of land on the eastern coast of the Mediterranean Sea, with a great desert on its other side. Water decided almost everything there. Rain came only in one season, so a village was built where a spring or a well was, and rivers like the Jordan were landmarks everyone knew. The sea to the west was not a holiday place. It was deep, dark and dangerous, and very few Israelites were sailors. That is worth remembering when you read Genesis 1. A chapter that begins with dark water and then makes dry land, and puts a sky over it and light in it, is describing the exact things those readers worried about most.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Main Idea

- (A) how deep the Jordan River is
- (B) how to sail on the Mediterranean Sea
- (C) the best season to plant seeds
- (D) why land and water mattered so much

2 Where were villages built?

Writing Task — Part 1 “Making Room, Then Filling It”

In Genesis 1, God makes an empty place first and then fills it. Think about a room, a box, a garden or a bag that you filled yourself. What was it like when it was empty? What did you put in it, and in what order? 4–6 sentences. End by saying one thing you were glad you put in last.

You can start with: “When my box was empty, it looked...”

Write your response on paper or in a notebook. This section is for print and take-home use; it is not scored online.

Part 2

Genesis 3–4

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 2

In Genesis 3, a crafty serpent questions God's command. The woman and the man eat the fruit God told them not to eat. They notice that they are naked, make coverings from fig leaves, and hide. God questions them, and each person tells what happened. God speaks consequences to the serpent, the woman, and the man. The ground will now produce thorns and thistles, and growing food will be hard work. God makes garments for the man and woman and sends them out of Eden. In Genesis 4, Eve gives birth to Cain and Abel. Cain works the ground, while Abel keeps sheep. Both bring offerings from their work. After God regards Abel and his offering but not Cain and his offering, God questions and warns Cain. Cain later attacks his brother, and Abel dies. God sends Cain away as a wanderer but also protects him from retaliation. The chapter then follows later family members who build a city, keep livestock, make music, and work with metal. Life continues outside Eden, but it is no longer life in the garden.

CHAPTER SUMMARY

Ch.	What happens
3	The Garden Is Left Behind — The serpent questions God's command, and the woman and man eat the forbidden fruit. They make coverings and hide. God questions them and speaks consequences. The ground will produce thorns and thistles, making food harder to grow. God clothes the man and woman, sends them out of Eden to work the ground, and guards the way to the tree of life.
4	Family Life Outside Eden — Eve gives birth to Cain and Abel. Cain works the ground, and Abel keeps sheep. Both bring offerings. God questions and warns an angry Cain, but Cain later attacks Abel, who dies. Cain must wander, though God also protects him from retaliation. A family line then names people connected with a city, tents and livestock, music, and metalwork. Seth is born, and the chapter closes with another branch of the family.

WORD STUDY · WORK AND RESPONSIBILITY Genesis 3–4 uses work words to show how life changes. Outside Eden, the man must work the ground, and Cain becomes a worker of the ground. Abel is a keeper of sheep, caring for a flock. Both brothers bring an offering connected with their work. Later, Cain asks whether he is his brother's keeper. In the ESV, the English word keeper appears in both descriptions, but the underlying Hebrew verbs are different. Readers should not treat this as repeated Hebrew wordplay. Still, each English use involves watching over or caring for someone or something. Daily work and family care meet in the question of responsibility.

"Each brother brings an offering connected with his work."

flock (n.)

Gen 4:4

A group of sheep or similar animals

"Abel brings firstborn animals from his flock."

keeper (n.)

Gen 4:2, 9

A person who watches over or cares for someone or something

"Abel keeps sheep, and Cain later asks about being his brother's keeper."

wanderer (n.)

Gen 4:12

A person who moves from place to place without a settled home

"Cain is told that he will become a wanderer on the earth."

sin (n.)

Gen 4:7

Wrongdoing that goes against what God wants

"God warns Cain that sin is crouching at the door, ready to control him."

forge (v.)

Gen 4:22

To shape metal, often with heat and hammering

"Tubal-cain is described as a forger of bronze and iron instruments."

CLOSE READING · OBSERVATION AND RESTRAINT The offerings in Genesis 4 need close reading.

Cain brings an offering from the fruit of the ground. Abel brings from the firstborn of his flock, including fat portions. The chapter says the LORD regards Abel and his offering but does not regard Cain and his offering. It does not directly say that shepherding is better than farming, and it does not give one short sentence explaining the different response. Before Cain attacks Abel, God questions Cain and warns him about sin. A careful reader reports what the passage says and leaves an unstated reason marked as unknown.

Literary Craft

Understanding HOW and WHY Genesis tells the story across Genesis 3–4.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

LITERARY CRAFT · QUESTIONS AND DIALOGUE Questions shape both chapters. After the man and woman hide, God asks where the man is, who told him he was naked, and whether he ate from the tree. God then asks the woman what she has done. In Genesis 4, God asks Cain why he is angry, where Abel is, and what he has done. The narrative places each question before an answer, a warning, or a consequence. Repeated questions can slow the action and draw attention to what each person says. This pattern helps readers compare the two family stories and think about dialogue, repetition, and responsibility.

Wisdom

Four deeper challenges — no single-word recall. Read, weigh the evidence, and reason it out.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

DAILY LIFE · FARMING AND SHEPHERDING Genesis 4 places a farmer and a shepherd in the same family. Archaeology shows that crop cultivation and herd management both appeared early in Southwest Asia, though the evidence does not date Cain and Abel. Early farming involved cultivating plants, while herding involved managing animals such as sheep and goats. At some ancient sites, evidence of both occurs together. This shows that farming and herding could be part of the same community. This background helps us picture the brothers' occupations, but it does not explain why God responded differently to their offerings. The chapter does not call either occupation superior.

Read Genesis 3–4 in your Bible first. Follow the move from the garden to life outside Eden. Then watch how the ground returns: the man is sent to work it, Cain works it, Abel keeps sheep, and the brothers bring offerings connected with their work. Notice the questions God asks in both chapters. Some details are stated directly, while other explanations are left unstated. Keep those two kinds of information separate.

Original passage written for this workbook — not a quotation from Scripture.

Farming and Herding in Southwest Asia

Genesis 4 introduces Cain and Abel by the work they do. Cain works the ground, while Abel keeps sheep. Archaeologists studying Southwest Asia find evidence that crop cultivation and herd management both appeared early in the region, sometimes in the same communities. Plant remains and animal bones help researchers identify these activities. This background helps readers picture a farmer tending crops and a shepherd caring for a flock, but it does not tell us when Cain and Abel lived or prove the story's location. In the chapter, each brother brings an offering connected with his work: Cain brings produce from the ground, and Abel brings firstborn animals from his flock. The text says God regards Abel and his offering but not Cain and his offering. It does not say that shepherding itself is better than farming. Good background knowledge adds a clearer picture while careful reading keeps it separate from what the passage directly states.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Main Idea

- (A) why one brother chose to leave home

Writing Task — Part 2 “Being Someone's Keeper”

In Genesis 4, God asks Cain, ‘Where is your brother?’ and Cain answers, ‘Am I my brother's keeper?’ Think of a time you helped take care of someone — a brother, sister, friend, or pet. What did you do, and how did it feel to be someone's ‘keeper’? 4–6 sentences. End by saying one way you could be a good ‘keeper’ this week.

You can start with: “One time I helped take care of...”

Part 3

Genesis 5–7

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 3

Genesis 5 traces a family line from Adam to Noah and Noah's sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. A repeated pattern records each generation, and Enoch's notice breaks that pattern. In Genesis 6, God sees that human wickedness has become great and that the earth is corrupt and full of violence. Noah finds favor with God. God tells Noah that judgment is coming and gives detailed instructions for an ark. It is to have rooms, three levels, a side door, and pitch inside and outside. God tells Noah to bring his family, animals, and stored food into the ark. Noah does what God commands. In Genesis 7, Noah enters with his wife, his three sons, and their wives. Clean animals and birds come in greater numbers than animals that are not clean. Rain falls for forty days and forty nights. The waters rise, lift the ark, and cover the land described in the account. The chapter closes while the waters are still prevailing.

CHAPTER SUMMARY

Ch.	What happens
5	A Family Line Reaches Noah — A genealogy follows Adam's family through many generations. Most entries repeat a pattern of life, children, years, and death, while Enoch's notice is different. Lamech names his son Noah and speaks of hoped-for relief. Noah later becomes the father of Shem, Ham, and Japheth.
6	God Gives Instructions for the Ark — The account describes human wickedness, corruption, and violence, but Noah finds favor with God. God announces judgment and tells Noah to make an ark. He gives its dimensions and features, promises to establish a covenant with Noah, and tells him to preserve his family, animals, and food. Noah does what God commands.
7	Noah Enters and the Waters Rise — Noah's family and the animals enter the ark. The chapter distinguishes clean animals and birds from animals that are not clean. Rain falls for forty days and nights, and rising waters lift the ark so that it floats. The waters continue to prevail for 150 days.

  Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

WORD STUDY · ANCIENT MEASUREMENT Genesis gives the ark's length, width, and height in cubits. A cubit was an ancient unit based on the forearm, but its exact length could vary across times and places. Surviving measuring rods show that ancient builders used standard units. The biblical dimensions are 300 cubits long, 50 cubits wide, and 30 cubits high. Those numbers give clear proportions: the length is six times the width and ten times the height. They do not supply one certain conversion into modern feet or meters. We can compare the ark's dimensions with care while keeping an exact modern size approximate.

righteous (adj.)

Gen 6:9

Living in a way that pleases God; doing what is right

"The passage describes Noah as righteous and blameless in his generation."

ark (n.)

Gen 6:14

The large vessel Noah is told to build

"Noah builds the ark according to God's instructions."

pitch (n.)

Gen 6:14

A material used to seal a surface against water

"Noah is told to coat the ark with pitch inside and outside."

cubit (n.)

Gen 6:15

An ancient unit of length based on the forearm

"The ark's dimensions are given in cubits."

covenant (n.)

Gen 6:18

A solemn promise or agreement that establishes a commitment

"God promises to establish a covenant with Noah."

clean (adj.)

Gen 7:2–3

Belonging to a biblical category named in the passage

"Clean animals and birds enter in greater numbers."

prevail (v.)

Gen 7:24

To continue strongly or become powerful

"The waters prevail on the earth for 150 days."

CLOSE READING · GENERAL AND SPECIFIC INSTRUCTIONS Genesis 6 first gives a general instruction: two of every sort of living creature are to be kept alive. Genesis 7 adds a more specific distinction. Clean animals and birds come in greater numbers than animals that are not clean. The chapter names these groups but does not explain the later biblical rules for them. It also uses broad creature groups and the phrase “according to their kinds,” not modern scientific species. Saying “exactly two of every animal” would flatten the two instructions into one. A careful reader keeps the general statement beside the added detail and reads both carefully.

1 What does Genesis 5 trace from Adam to Noah?

☐ (A) a list of cities

☐ (B) a set of laws

☐ (C) a sailing route

☐ (D) a family line

2 What does the account say about Noah before the ark instructions?

- ☐ (A) He rules over a city.
- ☐ (B) He finds favor with God.
- ☐ (C) He invents metal tools.
- ☐ (D) He sails to a new land.

3 What conditions does Genesis 6 connect with the announced judgment?

- ☐ (A) wealth and safety
- ☐ (B) violence and corruption
- ☐ (C) music and feasting

4 Which detail is included in God's ark instructions?

LITERARY CRAFT · REPETITION AND CONTRAST Genesis 5 is a genealogy, a record that traces a family line. Many entries follow a repeated pattern: a person's age is given, a son is named, other children are mentioned, the full lifespan is counted, and the person dies. The closing notice acts like a refrain. Enoch's entry is an exception. Instead of the usual ending, the account says that he walks with God and that God takes him. Repetition can train readers to expect what comes next. When the pattern changes, the difference receives special attention. The repeated ending and Enoch's different ending create a clear contrast.

GENEALOGY

A record that traces people in a family line. Genesis 5 follows generations from Adam to Noah and his sons.

REFRAIN

A line or pattern that returns several times. Many Genesis 5 entries close by reporting the person's death.

EXCEPTION

A case that does not follow the usual pattern. Enoch's notice ends differently from the entries around it.

1 What is a genealogy?

- ☐ A a record of a family line
- ☐ B a plan for a large vessel

Wisdom

Four deeper challenges — no single-word recall. Read, weigh the evidence, and reason it out.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

ARCHAEOLOGY · MATERIAL EVIDENCE Genesis calls Noah's vessel an ark and says it is coated with pitch inside and outside. The account gives rooms, three levels, and a side door, but it mentions no sail, oars, or rudder. Archaeologists have found ancient Near Eastern boat remains and models with bitumen, a dark material used to help keep water out. One ancient boat found near Uruk preserved impressions of plant material beneath its coating. Such finds show that waterproof coatings were part of ancient boatbuilding. They help readers picture a material detail in Genesis, but they do not prove the ark's date, place, shape, or construction. Background must stay separate from the passage's direct statements.

Read Genesis 5–7 in your Bible first. Follow the family line until it reaches Noah and his sons. Then notice why judgment is announced, which ark details God gives, and how Noah responds. Keep the general animal instruction in Genesis 6 beside the more specific distinction in Genesis 7. Finally, track the time statements: rain falls for forty days and nights, while the waters prevail for 150 days. Report each detail at the level the passage gives it.

Original passage written for this workbook — not a quotation from Scripture.

A Flood Story on a Clay Tablet

At the British Museum, a clay tablet from seventh-century BCE Nineveh preserves part of the Epic of Gilgamesh. Its cuneiform writing uses wedge-shaped signs pressed into clay. The story on this tablet includes a flood survivor who reports a warning and the building of a boat. It also mentions family members, animals, birds, and a sacrifice. These details create real similarities with the Genesis flood account, while other details differ, including the gods, the reason for the flood, and the boat's design. The object's date tells when this surviving copy was made, not when the flood it describes occurred. Its existence alone cannot prove that Genesis borrowed from it or that either account happened exactly as described. The tablet is evidence that a flood story was written in ancient Mesopotamia. A careful comparison states that evidence, examines both similarities and differences, and leaves larger conclusions qualified.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Main Idea

- ☐ (A) why all flood stories describe one event
- ☐ (B) how one tablet informs a careful comparison
- ☐ (C) how builders tested boats on major rivers
- ☐ (D) why clay replaced every other writing material

2 What material and writing system does the passage name?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) stone with painted symbols
- ☐ (B) papyrus with inked letters
- ☐ (C) clay with cuneiform signs
- ☐ (D) wood with carved pictures

3 In this passage, “preserves” most nearly means ____.

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Vocabulary in Context

- ☐ (A) keeps so it can survive
- ☐ (B) hides so no one can read
- ☐ (C) changes into a new story
- ☐ (D) translates into another language

4 What does the tablet's seventh-century BCE date establish?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) when the flood itself occurred
- ☐ (B) when this tablet copy was made
- ☐ (C) when Genesis was first written
- ☐ (D) when all flood stories began

5 Why does the passage mention both similarities and differences?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Author's Method

- ☐ (A) to show all ancient boats had one design
- ☐ (B) to prove the tablet records Genesis directly
- ☐ (C) to compare without calling the stories identical
- ☐ (D) to decide which museum owns older clay

6 Which statement is supported by the passage?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Evidence

- ☐ (A) The tablet records Noah's own spoken words.
- ☐ (B) The boat design matches Genesis in every detail.
- ☐ (C) The artifact was written during the flood.
- ☐ (D) A Mesopotamian tablet contains a flood story.

7 Which method does the final sentence recommend?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Synthesis

- ☐ (A) State what the object shows and qualify further claims.
- ☐ (B) Treat every similarity as proof of direct copying.
- ☐ (C) Ignore differences between the ancient accounts.
- ☐ (D) Use a later copy to date the event it describes.

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 4

Genesis 8 follows Noah as he waits for the flood waters to go down. He sends out a raven, then a dove three separate times, watching closely what each flight shows him. Once the earth is finally dry, God tells Noah to bring his family and every animal out of the ark. Noah's first act outside the ark is to build an altar and offer a sacrifice to the LORD. In Genesis 9, God blesses Noah's family, tells them to be fruitful and multiply, and promises never again to destroy every living thing with a flood. He gives the bow in the clouds as a lasting sign of that promise. Genesis 10 then traces the many descendants of Noah's three sons and connects them with the different nations, peoples, and languages spread across the ancient world. Genesis 11 zooms in on one group who share a single language. They settle in the land of Shinar and decide to build a city and a tower out of brick and bitumen, hoping to make a name for themselves. God confuses their language, they are dispersed across the earth, and the place is named Babel.

The Waters Go Down — Noah sends out a raven, then a dove three separate times, watching what each flight shows about the flood. Once the earth is dry, God tells Noah to bring his family and every animal out of the ark. Noah builds an altar and offers a sacrifice to the LORD.

A Promise and a Sign — God blesses Noah and his sons, tells them to be fruitful and multiply, and gives them permission to eat animals for food. God then promises never again to destroy every living thing with a flood, and gives the bow in the clouds as the sign of that lasting promise.

10

Many Nations — A long family record traces the descendants of Noah's three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, connecting different family lines with different nations, peoples, and languages spread across the ancient world.

11

One Language, One City — People who share one language settle in the land of Shinar and decide to build a city and a tower, so that they will make a name for themselves and not be dispersed. God confuses their language, and the people are dispersed across the earth after all; the place is named Babel.

WORD STUDY · ANCIENT BUILDING MATERIALS Genesis 11 says the builders had brick for stone and bitumen for mortar. That detail matches real ancient Mesopotamia. Unlike Egypt or Canaan, the land between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers had very little natural stone. Builders instead shaped wet river clay into bricks and dried or baked them hard. Bitumen, a sticky, tar-like substance that seeps naturally from the ground in parts of the ancient Near East, could be used the way mortar holds stones together today. Archaeologists have excavated brick walls and bitumen-sealed structures across the region, from house foundations to city walls. The passage's building materials fit the world it describes.

CLOSE READING · REPETITION WITH A CHANGE Genesis 8 describes Noah testing the flood waters three separate times. First he sends out a raven. Then he sends a dove, which finds no place to land and comes back. A week later he sends the dove again, and it returns carrying a freshly plucked olive leaf. A week after that, he sends the dove a third time, and it does not return at all. Each attempt repeats the same basic action — sending a bird — but the result changes every time. A careful reader tracks what stays the same and what changes across a repeated test, since the changes are exactly how the passage shows the waters slowly going down.

What does Noah do first to test whether the flood waters have gone down?

- ☐ (A) He sends out a dove.
- ☐ (B) He climbs onto the roof of the ark.
- ☐ (C) He opens a window and looks himself.
- ☐ (D) He sends out a raven.

2 What happens the first time Noah sends out the dove?

- ☐ A It brings back an olive leaf.
- ☐ B It finds no place to land and comes back.
- ☐ C It does not return at all.
- ☐ D It builds a nest on the mountains of Ararat.

3 What does the dove bring back on its second flight?

- ☐ A A handful of dry soil
- ☐ B A freshly plucked olive leaf
- ☐ C A small twig from a cedar tree
- ☐ D A grain of wheat

4 What does Noah do once he and his family leave the ark?

Literary Craft

Understanding HOW and WHY Genesis tells the story across Genesis 8–11.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

LITERARY CRAFT · SYMBOL In Genesis 9, God calls the bow in the clouds a sign — the word appears again and again in just a few verses. A sign is different from a plain fact. It is something you can see that stands for a promise you cannot see. The bow itself is light and water in the sky, but the passage gives it a job: every time it appears, it points back to God's promise never to flood the whole earth again. Writers use a symbol this way on purpose, choosing one visible thing to carry a much bigger meaning. Once you know a symbol's meaning, noticing it again feels different than noticing it for the first time.

SYMBOL

A visible thing that stands for a bigger meaning beyond itself. The bow becomes a symbol of God's promise never to flood the whole earth again.

REPETITION

A word or idea repeated on purpose. The word 'sign' appears again and again in Genesis 9 to mark how important the promise is.

MOTIVE

A stated reason for what a character wants or decides to do. The people in Shinar give their own reason for building: to make a name for themselves and avoid being dispersed.

1 What is a symbol?

- ☐ A A visible thing with a meaning beyond itself
- ☐ B A rule for how thick a city wall must be
- ☐ C A full list of one family's descendants
- ☐ D A city renamed after its own founder

2 Fill in the blank with the correct word.

Word choices: symbol repetition motive mortar - some words will not be used

The bow becomes a _____ of God's promise once it is given that meaning in Genesis 9.

3 Why does the word 'sign' appear so many times in Genesis 9:12–17?

- ☐ A Because repeating words is always a mistake
- ☐ B To describe a new promise every time
- ☐ C To mark how important the promise is
- ☐ D Because the author forgot other words

4 The people in Shinar give their own stated reason for building the city and tower.

TRUE

FALSE

5 A repeated word in a Bible passage is always an accident and never done on purpose.

TRUE

6 Fill in the blank with the correct word.

Word choices: motive symbol repetition dispersed - some words will not be used

A stated reason for what a character wants is called a _____.

7 What does noticing the people's stated motive in Genesis 11 help a reader do?

(A) Prove exactly how every ancient language began

(B) Decide where the real city of Babel stood today

(C) Replace the passage's own reason with a new one

(D) Understand why they build instead of guessing

PART 4

Wisdom

Four deeper challenges — no single-word recall. Read, weigh the evidence, and reason it out.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

ARCHAEOLOGY · MATERIAL EVIDENCE Ancient Mesopotamia built its temples upward, not outward. A ziggurat was a massive stepped tower of sun-dried and baked mudbrick, with a shrine at the top. The best-known example, the Great Ziggurat of Ur, was begun around 2100 BC by King Ur-Nammu and probably finished under his son. Archaeologist Leonard Woolley's team excavated it in the 1920s and 1930s; only its massive base and staircases have survived to be measured directly, since the shrine at the top is long gone. Ziggurats were not houses or forts; each belonged to a city and its god. Genesis 11 never uses the word ziggurat, but it describes people in the same region building upward with the same brick-and-bitumen construction archaeologists have found.

Read Genesis 8–11 in your Bible first. Notice how Noah tests the water three separate times before he ever leaves the ark, and what changes each time. Then look closely at the promise God makes and the sign he gives it — Genesis 9 stops right after that promise, and this workbook does too. Finally, follow the people who settle in Shinar, the materials they choose to build with, and what they hope building a tall tower and a city will do for them. Keep the passage's own words about being dispersed separate from any guess about how every language in the world actually began.

Many Languages in One Ancient Land

Ancient Mesopotamia was home to more than one language. Sumerian and Akkadian were both written with the same wedge-shaped cuneiform signs, but they were separate languages with their own grammar. Scribes in training even aligned word lists that matched a Sumerian word beside its Akkadian meaning, almost like a two-language dictionary carved in clay. These bilingual word lists were copied and studied for roughly two thousand years, long after Sumerian stopped being anyone's everyday spoken language. Trade routes and city life constantly brought speakers of different languages into contact with each other. Mesopotamia sat along paths used by travelers, traders, and messengers moving between distant regions. Thousands of these clay tablets have survived in the region's dry soil, and scholars have spent well over a century learning to read them again after the skill had been lost for centuries. A single word list cannot show exactly how every language in the world began, but it does show that ancient Mesopotamia's cities were places where more than one language could be heard in the same street.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Main Idea

- ☐ (A) Instructions for baking clay tablets correctly
- ☐ (B) Evidence for more than one Mesopotamian language
- ☐ (C) A full translation of the Sumerian language
- ☐ (D) A complete timeline of every Mesopotamian king

2 Which two languages does the passage name?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) Hebrew and Aramaic
- ☐ (B) Egyptian and Greek
- ☐ (C) Sumerian and Akkadian
- ☐ (D) Latin and Phoenician

3 In this passage, “aligned” most nearly means ____.

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Vocabulary in Context

- ☐ (A) lined up and matched together
- ☐ (B) translated into a new language
- ☐ (C) buried deep underground
- ☐ (D) erased on purpose

4 What evidence shows scribes worked with two languages at once?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) A single tablet written in one language only
- ☐ (B) Word lists that pair Sumerian and Akkadian words
- ☐ (C) A drawing that shows two scribes arguing
- ☐ (D) A list of kings ruling two different cities

5 Why might Mesopotamia's cities have had speakers of different languages nearby each other?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Inference

- ☐ (A) Every city agreed to use only one shared language
- ☐ (B) Clay tablets were too heavy to carry between cities
- ☐ (C) Trade routes connected speakers of different languages
- ☐ (D) Scribes were forbidden from learning a second language

6 What kind of evidence does the passage rely on to make its point?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Evidence

- ☐ (A) A single scholar's personal opinion
- ☐ (B) A modern survey of living languages
- ☐ (C) A legend with no physical evidence at all
- ☐ (D) Clay tablets recovered from the ground

7 According to the passage, what can and cannot a single word list show?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Synthesis

- ☐ (A) It shows two languages in use, not how language began
- ☐ (B) It proves exactly how every human language began
- ☐ (C) It cannot show anything reliable about Mesopotamia
- ☐ (D) It shows the exact date every tablet was written

Writing Task — Part 4 “A Sign That Means Something”

In Genesis 9, God gives the bow in the clouds as a sign of his promise. A sign can be a small thing that stands for something bigger — a handshake, a note, or a certain place. Think of a sign or symbol in your own life that reminds you of a promise or a memory. What is it, and what does it remind you of? 4–6 sentences. End by saying why that sign matters to you.

You can start with: “One sign that reminds me of...”

Write your response on paper or in a notebook. This section is for print and take-home use; it is not scored online.

Part 5

Genesis 12–14

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 5

Genesis 12 opens with the LORD calling Abram to leave his country, his relatives, and his father's household, and go to a land the LORD will show him. God promises to bless Abram and make him into a great nation. Abram, his wife Sarai, and his nephew Lot leave Haran and travel to Canaan, where Abram builds an altar. A famine then sends the family down to Egypt for a time, and they return to Canaan once it passes. In Genesis 13, Abram is now wealthy in livestock, silver, and gold. His herdsmen and Lot's herdsmen begin quarreling because the land cannot support both households at once, so Abram lets Lot choose land first. Lot picks the well-watered plain near Sodom, and Abram stays in Canaan, where God repeats his promise of land and descendants. Genesis 14 describes a war between two groups of kings; the losing side's goods and people, including Lot, are carried off. Abram arms the trained men of his household, pursues the raiders, and rescues Lot along with the captured people and goods. On his way back, Melchizedek, king of Salem and priest of God Most High, blesses Abram and brings out bread and wine, and Abram gives him a tenth of everything.

CHAPTER SUMMARY

Ch.	What happens
12	The Call and the Journey — The LORD calls Abram to leave his country and promises to bless him and make him a great nation. Abram, Sarai, and Lot travel from Haran to Canaan, where Abram builds an altar. A famine sends the family to Egypt for a time before they return to Canaan.
13	Abram and Lot Separate — Back in Canaan, Abram and Lot's herdsmen quarrel over grazing land. Abram lets Lot choose first; Lot picks the well-watered plain near Sodom, and Abram stays in Canaan, where God repeats his promise of land and descendants.
14	The Rescue of Lot — A coalition of eastern kings defeats the kings of the plain and carries off goods and people, including Lot. Abram arms his trained men, pursues, and rescues Lot. Melchizedek, king of Salem and priest of God Most High, blesses Abram, and Abram gives him a tenth of everything.

Understanding

 Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

CLOSE READING · REPEATED DETAIL The LORD's promise to Abram is not stated just once. In Genesis 12, God tells Abram he will make him a great nation and bless him. In Genesis 13, after Abram lets Lot choose land first, God tells Abram to look in every direction, since all the land he can see will belong to his descendants, who will be as many as the dust of the earth. A careful reader notices when a passage restates something already said, because the second time usually adds a new detail — here, the size and shape of the promise grows clearer each time it returns. Watching for a repeated promise is one way to find what a passage cares about most.

1 What does the LORD tell Abram to do at the start of Genesis 12?

- ☐ (A) Build a tower to reach the sky.
- ☐ (B) Travel first to Egypt to escape a war.
- ☐ (C) Stay in Haran and wait for further instructions.
- ☐ (D) Leave his country and go to a land God will show him.

2 Why do Abram and Lot's herdsmen begin quarreling in Genesis 13?

- ☐ A Lot decides to move back to Haran.
- ☐ B Their herds are too large for the land.
- ☐ C Abram refuses to share his silver.
- ☐ D A famine has just begun in Canaan.

3 Which land does Lot choose when Abram lets him pick first?

- ☐ A The dry hill country of Canaan
- ☐ B The well-watered plain near Sodom
- ☐ C The desert land south of Egypt
- ☐ D The coastal land by the sea

4 What does Abram do once he hears that Lot has been carried off?

- ☐ A He asks the king of Sodom to send an army instead.
- ☐ B He waits in Canaan for Lot to return on his own.
- ☐ C He travels to Egypt to ask Pharaoh for help.
- ☐ D He arms the trained men of his household and pursues.

Literary Craft

Understanding HOW and WHY Genesis tells the story across Genesis 12–14.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

LITERARY CRAFT · CONTRAST Genesis 13 places two choices side by side. The land cannot support both Abram's and Lot's herds, so Abram offers Lot the first pick. Lot looks at the land and chooses the well-watered plain for himself. Abram, who could have taken the better land since he is the elder, instead lets Lot go first and settles for what remains. Writers often place two characters' choices next to each other on purpose, so a reader can compare them without being told directly what to think. This is called contrast — showing two things side by side so the difference between them stands out on its own.

CONTRAST

Placing two things side by side so a reader can see how they differ. Abram lets Lot choose land first; Lot picks the better-watered plain for himself, a contrast in what each man chooses.

SETTING

The time and place of a story. Genesis 12–13 moves Abram's setting from Haran to Canaan to Egypt and back to Canaan, tracing his journey through changing places.

REPETITION

A word or idea repeated on purpose. God repeats his promise of land and descendants to Abram more than once across Genesis 12–13, keeping the promise in view.

1 What is contrast?

- ☐ A Showing two things to reveal a difference
- ☐ B Repeating one word many times in a row
- ☐ C Describing only one character at length
- ☐ D Listing events in the order they happened

2 Fill in the blank with the correct word.

Word choices: contrast setting repetition famine - some words will not be used

3 How does Genesis 12–13 use setting?

- ☐ A It stays fixed in Haran for both chapters.
- ☐ B It never names any specific location at all.
- ☐ C It traces Abram's journey through changing places.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

ARCHAEOLOGY · DAILY LIFE Families like Abram's, moving between cities with herds of sheep and goats, were part of a real, well-documented way of life. Thousands of clay tablets recovered from the ancient city of Mari, written mostly in Akkadian, record letters between kings and local officials about herding groups moving with their flocks between settled cities. These groups kept close ties to city life — trading, making agreements, and sometimes settling down — while also living seasonally in tents beyond the city walls. The Mari letters show this back-and-forth movement was normal across the region in roughly Abram's era, not a rare or unusual lifestyle.

Read Genesis 12–14 in your Bible first. Notice exactly what the LORD promises Abram at the very start, and watch for that same promise being restated later in Genesis 13 with a new detail added. Then look closely at how Abram and Lot each choose when they have to separate — what each choice shows about each man, without the passage stating it directly. Finally, follow the rescue in Genesis 14 and notice exactly what Abram does and does not accept from the king of Sodom afterward.

Original passage written for this workbook — not a quotation from Scripture.

Herders on the Move

Thousands of clay tablets were recovered from the ancient city of Mari, on the Euphrates River. Most of them are letters written in the Akkadian language between roughly 1900 and 1800 BC. Many were written by or to officials tracking groups who moved seasonally with herds of sheep and goats between settled cities. These herding groups were not cut off from city life. The tablets show them trading, making agreements, and staying in close contact with kings and local officials, even while living in tents for part of the year. A single ruler could govern both city dwellers and herding groups at once, since the two ways of life overlapped constantly rather than staying separate. Scribes recorded these letters in cuneiform, pressing wedge-shaped signs into soft clay before it dried hard in the sun or an oven. That hardened clay is exactly why so many tablets survived for thousands of years in the region's dry soil. The Mari letters cannot describe every family who moved this way across the ancient Near East, but they do show that this kind of seasonal, herd-based travel between cities was a normal, well-documented part of life in the region.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Main Idea

- ☐ (A) Instructions for reading cuneiform writing
- ☐ (B) Evidence for seasonal herding near cities
- ☐ (C) A full biography of one Mesopotamian king
- ☐ (D) A description of one clay tablet's shape

2 Where were the Mari tablets found?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ A A cave near the Dead Sea
- ☐ B A tomb somewhere in Egypt
- ☐ C A city on the Euphrates River
- ☐ D A mountain in Anatolia

3 In this passage, “govern” most nearly means ____.

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Vocabulary in Context

- ☐ A to rule over
- ☐ B to travel through quickly
- ☐ C to write down in a letter
- ☐ D to sell or trade goods

4 What evidence shows herding groups stayed in contact with city officials?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ A A single tablet with no letters at all
- ☐ B Letters about trade and agreements
- ☐ C A drawing of a herding camp
- ☐ D A list of cities with no other details

5 Why might a ruler have governed both city dwellers and herding groups at once?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Inference

- ☐ (A) Because herding groups never entered any city
- ☐ (B) Because city dwellers never owned any herds
- ☐ (C) Because the two ways of life overlapped constantly
- ☐ (D) Because only city dwellers paid any taxes

Genesis 15–17

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 6

Genesis 15 begins with the LORD telling Abram not to be afraid, promising that Abram's own offspring — not a servant — will be his heir, and that his descendants will be as many as the stars. Abram believes the LORD, and it is counted to him as righteousness. The LORD then confirms this promise with a formal covenant ceremony: Abram cuts several animals in half, and after dark, a smoking fire pot and a blazing torch pass between the pieces. The LORD also tells Abram that his descendants will live as sojourners in a foreign land for four hundred years before coming out with great possessions, and describes the borders of the promised land. Genesis 16 tells how Sarai, still childless, gives her servant Hagar to Abram, and Hagar bears a son named Ishmael. In Genesis 17, when Abram is ninety-nine, God appears again, establishes his covenant, changes Abram's name to Abraham and Sarai's name to Sarah, and promises that Sarah herself will bear a son within the year. God gives circumcision as the sign of this covenant for every male in Abraham's household, and Abraham circumcises himself and every male of his household that same day.

Ch.	What happens
15	A Promise Confirmed — The LORD promises Abram an heir of his own and descendants as many as the stars. Abram believes the LORD, and it is counted to him as righteousness. The LORD then confirms the covenant through a formal ceremony with animals cut in half, and describes four hundred years of sojourning ahead.
16	Hagar and Ishmael — Sarai, still childless, gives her servant Hagar to Abram, and Hagar bears a son named Ishmael. An angel of the LORD meets Hagar in the wilderness and tells her to return, promising to greatly multiply her offspring as well.
17	New Names, a New Sign — God establishes his covenant with Abram, renaming him Abraham and Sarai Sarah, and promises Sarah will bear a son within the year. God gives circumcision as the sign of the covenant, and Abraham circumcises himself and every male of his household that day.

WORD STUDY · ANCIENT CEREMONY Genesis 15 describes Abram cutting animals in half so a smoking fire pot and torch can pass between the pieces. Surviving treaty texts from Mari and the Hittite Empire, written in the second millennium BC, describe this same kind of ceremony: animals slaughtered and cut apart to seal an agreement between two parties. Passing between the pieces acted out a warning — the pieces showed what could happen to someone who broke the promise. Scholars who study these documents call this pattern covenant-cutting, since ancient languages, including Hebrew, use the same verb for both cutting an animal and making a formal agreement. Genesis 15's ceremony matches a real ancient practice.

CLOSE READING · COMPARING TWO SCENES Genesis 15 and Genesis 17 both record God making a covenant with Abram, but the two chapters are not identical. In Genesis 15, God confirms the promise with a ceremony involving animals cut in half. In Genesis 17, God adds something new: a sign carried in the body of every male in Abraham's household, and new names for Abram and Sarai. A careful reader lines up two similar passages side by side and asks what is the same in both and what is genuinely new the second time. Here, the promise of descendants stays the same across both chapters, but Genesis 17 adds the covenant sign and the renaming, showing the promise growing more specific.

1 What does the LORD promise Abram at the start of Genesis 15?

- ☐ (A) That he will return to Ur within the year.
- ☐ (B) That Lot will inherit everything Abram owns.
- ☐ (C) That his flocks will double before the next harvest.
- ☐ (D) That his own offspring, not a servant, will be his heir.

2 What happens after Abram cuts the animals in half?

- ☐ (A) Abram falls asleep and does not wake until morning.
- ☐ (B) A smoking fire pot and torch pass between the pieces.
- ☐ (C) Lot arrives and joins the ceremony.
- ☐ (D) The animals are given to the poor of the land.

3 Who does Sarai give to Abram in Genesis 16?

- ☐ (A) Her sister
- ☐ (B) Her servant Hagar
- ☐ (C) A servant named Eliezer
- ☐ (D) A distant cousin

4 What does God do to Abram's and Sarai's names in Genesis 17?

- ☐ (A) He removes their names from the record entirely.
- ☐ (B) He gives them titles instead of new names.
- ☐ (C) He renames only Abram, leaving Sarai unchanged.
- ☐ (D) He changes them to Abraham and Sarah.

Literary Craft

Understanding HOW and WHY Genesis tells the story across Genesis 15–17.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

LITERARY CRAFT · SIGNIFICANT NAMING In Genesis 17, God changes Abram's name to Abraham and Sarai's name to Sarah. Names in Genesis are rarely just labels; a changed name usually marks a real turning point in a character's story. The text itself explains part of the change: Abraham's new name connects to being father of many nations, matching the promise God has just made. A writer who marks a turning point with a new name is using what's sometimes called significant naming — the name itself carries meaning a reader is meant to notice, not just a new sound to get used to. Watching for a name change is one clear signal that a story wants you to see a character differently going forward.

SIGNIFICANT NAMING

When a name change marks a real turning point in a character's story and carries meaning tied to it. Abram becomes Abraham as part of God's covenant promise.

CEREMONY

A formal, repeated set of actions that marks something binding or important. The animals cut in half in Genesis 15 form a ceremony that confirms the covenant.

PARALLEL SCENE

Two passages that describe a similar event so a reader can compare what stays the same and what is new. Genesis 15 and 17 both record God making a covenant with Abram.

1 What is significant naming?

- ☐ A A name change marking a real turning point
- ☐ B Any name a character happens to have
- ☐ C A list of every name in a chapter
- ☐ D A name used only once in a passage

Wisdom

💎 Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

ARCHAEOLOGY · MATERIAL EVIDENCE Circumcision was not invented in Genesis 17; it was already a practiced custom elsewhere in the ancient world. The earliest known depiction of it comes from a stone relief at Saqqara, Egypt, dated to around 2400 BC — centuries before Abraham. The relief shows priests using flint blades to perform the rite on a group of boys, and Egyptian writings describe it as a marker of status carried out on young men. From Egypt, the practice spread to other peoples in the region. Genesis 17 does not claim the physical act itself was new to the ancient world; the text gives it new meaning, as the sign of a specific covenant between God and Abraham's household, not merely a cultural custom.

Read Genesis 15–17 in your Bible first. Notice exactly what Abram believes in Genesis 15:6, and how the LORD responds. Then watch the covenant ceremony closely — what Abram does with the animals, and what happens after dark. In Genesis 17, pay close attention to which names change and what new sign is given, and compare this chapter back to Genesis 15: what stays the same about the promise, and what is added. Keep the passage's own wording about 'the sign of the covenant' separate from any question about what happens in later chapters.

Sealed with a Ceremony

Long before written law codes, agreements in the ancient Near East were often sealed with a physical ceremony rather than a signature. Surviving texts from the ancient city of Mari and from the Hittite Empire, dated to the second millennium BC, describe treaties confirmed by cutting animals apart. Sometimes figurines representing the two parties were also broken. The ceremony acted out a warning: the animal's fate showed what the two sides agreed should happen to whoever broke the agreement later. Ancient Hebrew uses the same verb for cutting an animal and for making a covenant, a small detail that hints at how closely the two ideas were linked in that world. Scholars studying these treaty texts note that the ceremony was not unique to any one kingdom; versions of it appear across several cultures and centuries in the wider region. A single ceremony cannot prove exactly how every ancient promise was sealed, but it does show that a formal, physical ritual, not just spoken words, stood behind a serious agreement in the ancient Near East.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Main Idea

- ☐ (A) A full list of every Hittite king
- ☐ (B) Evidence for a real ancient covenant ceremony
- ☐ (C) Instructions for writing a modern contract
- ☐ (D) A description of one clay figurine's shape

2 Which two sources does the passage name as evidence?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) Letters from Egypt and Rome
- ☐ (B) Records from Athens and Sparta
- ☐ (C) Texts from Mari and the Hittite Empire
- ☐ (D) Inscriptions from Babylon and Persia

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) Hebrew has no word at all for agreement
- ☐ (B) One verb covers both cutting and covenant-making
- ☐ (C) Hebrew borrowed the word covenant from Egyptian
- ☐ (D) Hebrew uses ten different words for cutting

5 Why might a ceremony have felt more binding than spoken words alone?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Inference

- ☐ (A) Spoken words were considered meaningless everywhere
- ☐ (B) Ceremonies were always shorter than any conversation
- ☐ (C) A physical ritual acted out a real warning to both sides
- ☐ (D) Only kings were legally permitted to speak aloud

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 7

Genesis 18 opens with three visitors arriving at Abraham's tent near Mamre. Abraham runs to greet them, offers water to wash their feet, and has a meal quickly prepared. The visitors tell Abraham that Sarah will have a son within the year; Sarah, listening at the tent, laughs to herself since she is old. The visitors then set out toward Sodom, and the LORD tells Abraham that the outcry against Sodom and Gomorrah is great. Abraham bargains with the LORD, asking whether the city would be spared if fifty righteous people were found there, then talking the number down step by step to ten. Genesis 19 follows two of the visitors to Sodom, where Lot meets them at the city gate and urges them to stay at his house. That evening, the men of the city surround Lot's house and threaten the visitors; the visitors strike the men with blindness and warn Lot to gather his family and leave, since the city is about to be destroyed. Lot, his wife, and his two daughters are led out of the city; they are told not to look back, but Lot's wife looks back and becomes a pillar of salt. The city is destroyed, and Lot's family reaches safety. Genesis 20 tells how Abraham travels to Gerar and again says Sarah is his sister; King Abimelech takes Sarah, but God warns him in a dream before any harm is done, and Abimelech returns Sarah to Abraham along with gifts.

What happens

Three Visitors and a Bargain — Three visitors come to Abraham at Mamre; he welcomes them warmly, and they tell him Sarah will have a son within the year. The LORD tells Abraham of the outcry against Sodom, and Abraham bargains the number of righteous people needed to spare the city down from fifty to ten.

19

Rescue from Sodom — Two visitors reach Sodom, where Lot welcomes them. The men of the city threaten the visitors, who strike them with blindness and warn Lot to flee. Lot's family is led out of the city; Lot's wife looks back and becomes a pillar of salt, and the city is destroyed as the family reaches safety.

Abraham and Abimelech — In Gerar, Abraham again says Sarah is his sister. King Abimelech takes Sarah, but God warns him in a dream before any harm is done. Abimelech returns Sarah to Abraham along with gifts.

WORD STUDY · ANCIENT CUSTOM Abraham's welcome of the three visitors — running to greet them, washing their feet, preparing a meal at once — matches a real and long-lasting custom of the region. Hospitality toward travelers has long been treated as a serious duty across Near Eastern desert cultures, since survival in a harsh landscape often depended on strangers sharing food, water, and shelter along the way. A host greeting a guest, offering water, and preparing a shared meal is described across many centuries of writing about the region, not invented for this one passage. Reading Genesis 18 alongside this wider custom helps explain why Abraham's fast, generous welcome would have struck an ancient reader as exactly right.

CLOSE READING · A REPEATED PATTERN WITH SMALL CHANGES In Genesis 18, Abraham asks the LORD the same basic question six times in a row: would the city be spared if a certain number of righteous people were found there? Each time, only one detail changes — the number, stepping down from fifty to forty-five, forty, thirty, twenty, and finally ten. A careful reader tracks a pattern like this by asking what stays exactly the same and what single detail moves each time, since that one changing detail is usually the whole point. Here, watching the number fall shows a reader exactly how far the bargaining goes before it stops.

1 What does Abraham do as soon as he sees the three visitors?

- ☐ (A) He hides inside his tent until they leave.
- ☐ (B) He sends a servant to turn them away.
- ☐ (C) He asks them to wait outside the camp.
- ☐ (D) He runs to greet them and prepares a meal.

2 What number does Abraham's bargaining with the LORD end on?

- ☐ (A) Fifty righteous people
- ☐ (B) Ten righteous people
- ☐ (C) One righteous person
- ☐ (D) One hundred righteous people

3 What do the visitors do to the men who surround Lot's house?

- ☐ (A) They invite the men inside for a meal.
- ☐ (B) They strike the men with blindness.
- ☐ (C) They argue with the men until sunrise.
- ☐ (D) They leave the house through a side door.

4 What happens to Lot's wife as the family flees?

- ☐ (A) She stops to gather her belongings first.
- ☐ (B) She returns to warn her neighbors.
- ☐ (C) She reaches safety ahead of the rest of the family.
- ☐ (D) She looks back and becomes a pillar of salt.

PART 3

Literary Craft

Understanding HOW and WHY Genesis tells the story across Genesis 18–20.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

LITERARY CRAFT · STEPPED BARGAINING Abraham's exchange with the LORD in Genesis 18 is built from one repeated question asked six times, with a single number changing each time. A writer who repeats a question this way, changing only one small detail with each repeat, is using a pattern that lets a reader feel the tension build without spelling it out directly. Every step down — fifty, forty-five, forty, thirty, twenty, ten — asks the same underlying question again, so the small change carries all the weight. This stepped repeating structure is a craft choice, not an accident, and it lets a reader watch Abraham's request grow more specific right up to the final number.

STEPPED REPETITION

A question or action repeated several times with one small detail changing each time. Abraham's bargaining in Genesis 18 repeats the same question with the number falling each time.

WARNING

A stated caution given before a consequence follows. The visitors warn Lot's family not to look back before Lot's wife looks back.

CONSEQUENCE

A result the passage directly connects to an action that came before it. Genesis 19 directly connects Lot's wife looking back with her becoming a pillar of salt.

1 What is stepped repetition?

- ☐ A A question repeated with one changing detail
- ☐ B A question asked only once in a passage
- ☐ C A list of names with no action at all
- ☐ D An event described in a single sentence

2 Fill in the blank with the correct word.

Word choices: repetition warning consequence favor

_____ .

3 What is a warning, as a literary device?

- ☐ A A description with no connection to later events
- ☐ B A question with no clear answer given
- ☐ C A stated caution given before a consequence follows
- ☐ D A list of characters in a single scene

4 Genesis 19 directly connects Lot's wife looking back with her becoming a pillar of salt.

7 What does noticing the stepped repetition in Genesis 18 help a reader see?

(A) That Abraham never asks more than one question

(B) That the LORD never answers any of the questions

(C) That the passage repeats itself by accident

(D) How far Abraham's request moves before it stops

PART 7

Wisdom

Four deeper challenges — no single-word recall. Read, weigh the evidence, and reason it out.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

GEOLOGY · MATERIAL EVIDENCE The region near the Dead Sea has a real geological feature worth knowing. Mount Sodom, a ridge along the sea's southwestern shore, is roughly eighty percent solid salt, pushed up from deep underground over hundreds of thousands of years. Rain slowly dissolves tunnels and caves through the salt, and when a cave's wall collapses, it can leave behind a freestanding salt column. One such column near the base of the ridge is nicknamed “Lot's Wife” by visitors today. This does not prove which exact spot Genesis 19 describes, but it shows that this specific region really does form tall salt pillars through ordinary, observable erosion.

Read Genesis 18–20 in your Bible first. Notice exactly how Abraham greets the three visitors, and count how many times he asks the LORD about Sodom, watching the number change with each question. In Genesis 19, pay attention to the exact warning the visitors give Lot's family and what happens right after it is not followed. This workbook covers Genesis 19 through the family reaching safety and stops there. Finally, notice how Genesis 20 echoes an earlier chapter in this book, and what is the same and different about how it resolves.

A Duty Older Than the Story

Across many centuries of writing from the ancient Near East, one custom appears again and again: welcoming a traveler was treated as a serious duty, not a casual choice. In a hot, dry landscape with long distances between settlements, a traveler without food, water, or shelter for the night could be in real danger. A host was expected to offer water for washing, a place to rest, and a shared meal. Often this welcome came before the host even asked a guest's name or business. Later writers described this duty using the phrase "sacred hospitality," since breaching it was treated as a serious wrong, not a minor rudeness. This custom was not limited to any single family or city. Travelers' accounts from across the wider region describe a similar pattern of welcome for centuries, long after any one story was first written down. Some writers even record hosts offering their best food to a stranger while eating more simply themselves. A single account cannot describe every host in every era, but the pattern itself is documented widely enough that a sudden, generous welcome to strangers would not have surprised an ancient reader at all.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

WHAT HAPPENS IN PART 8

Genesis 21 opens with Isaac's birth, exactly as God had promised, and Abraham circumcises him at eight days old. Sarah later asks Abraham to send Hagar and Ishmael away; Abraham is distressed, but God tells him to listen to Sarah, promising to make a nation of Ishmael as well. In the wilderness, Hagar's water runs out, but God hears the boy crying and shows Hagar a well. Abraham and Abimelech then settle a dispute over a well at Beersheba and make a treaty there. Genesis 22 tells how God tests Abraham, telling him to offer Isaac as an offering on a mountain in the region of Moriah. Abraham obeys, and as he travels with Isaac, Isaac asks where the offering is; Abraham answers that God will provide it. At the mountain, Abraham builds an altar and binds Isaac, but an angel of the LORD stops him before he can go through with it, and Abraham finds a ram caught nearby to offer instead. Abraham names the place "The LORD Will Provide." Genesis 23 then describes Sarah's death at Kiriath-arba. Abraham mourns her and negotiates with Ephron the Hittite at the city gate, insisting on paying the full price for the cave of Machpelah rather than accepting it as a gift, and buries Sarah there.

Understanding

Show you understood what happens in Genesis 21–23.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

CLOSE READING · A MEANINGFUL EXCHANGE As Abraham and Isaac walk together toward the mountain, Isaac asks a short, direct question: where is the offering? Abraham gives a short, direct answer: God will provide it. Genesis does not describe either person's face or feelings here at all — it lets the plain exchange of words carry the whole moment. A careful reader slows down at a passage's shortest lines of dialogue, since a writer who chooses not to explain a character's feelings directly is often trusting the reader to sit with the question rather than rushing past a brief spoken exchange.

What happens exactly as God had promised in Genesis 21?

- ☐ (A) Ishmael is born to Sarah.
- ☐ (B) Abraham returns to Ur.
- ☐ (C) Lot rejoins Abraham's household.
- ☐ (D) Isaac is born to Sarah.

2 What does God tell Abraham to do on the mountain in Moriah?

- ☐ (A) Build a well for the household.
- ☐ (B) Offer Isaac as an offering.
- ☐ (C) Meet with Abimelech to make peace.
- ☐ (D) Bury Sarah in a family tomb.

3 What does Abraham find near the altar once the angel stops him?

- ☐ (A) A second altar already built
- ☐ (B) A ram caught in a thicket
- ☐ (C) A servant waiting with water
- ☐ (D) A tent left behind by travelers

4 What does Abraham insist on doing when Ephron offers him the cave?

- ☐ (A) Refusing the cave and searching elsewhere.
- ☐ (B) Sharing the cave equally with Ephron's family.
- ☐ (C) Waiting a full year before deciding.
- ☐ (D) Paying the full price rather than accepting a gift.

5 Write the numbers 1–5 in the boxes to show the correct order across Genesis 21–23. Number 1 = what happens first.

Literary Craft

Understanding HOW and WHY Genesis tells the story across Genesis 21–23.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

LITERARY CRAFT · PLACE NAMING Abraham names the mountain in Moriah “The LORD Will Provide,” turning the location itself into a lasting record of what happened there. This is a pattern that appears more than once in Genesis: a place is given a name that explains or commemorates an event, so that anyone hearing the name afterward is reminded of the story behind it. A named place works almost like a permanent marker in the landscape, doing some of the same work a written record does. Watching for a place-name like this is a way of noticing where the passage itself is telling you what it wants remembered.

DIALOGUE

A spoken exchange between characters that reveals something important. Isaac's question and Abraham's answer on the way to the mountain carry the whole scene in just a few words.

PLACE NAMING

A place given a name that explains or commemorates an event that happened there. Abraham names the mountain “The LORD Will Provide.”

COURTEOUS BARGAINING

A polite back-and-forth exchange where an offer is declined as a formality before being accepted. Ephron offers the cave as a gift before Abraham insists on paying.

1 What is dialogue, as a literary term?

- ☐ A A spoken exchange that reveals something important
- ☐ B A long description with no characters speaking
- ☐ C A list of places visited in one chapter
- ☐ D A single character's private, unspoken thought

2 Fill in the blank with the correct word.

3 What does place naming do in a passage like Genesis 22?

- ☐ A It removes all meaning from where an event happened.
- ☐ B It replaces the need for any spoken dialogue.
- ☐ C It turns a location into a lasting record of an event.
- ☐ D It only matters for very large, famous cities.

4 Abraham names the mountain in Moriah after himself.

7 What does Abraham's short exchange with Isaac in Genesis 22 let a reader do?

(A) Skip the scene entirely without missing anything

PART 8

Wisdom

Four deeper challenges — no single-word recall. Read, weigh the evidence, and reason it out.

Treasure Wisdom · a true fact behind the story

ARCHAEOLOGY · ANCIENT LAW Genesis 23 describes Abraham negotiating for the cave of Machpelah at the city gate, in front of everyone entering it. This detail matches real ancient Near Eastern legal custom: the city gate served as the equivalent of a courthouse, where elders and witnesses gathered so that a land sale could not be disputed later. Surviving Hittite legal texts, compiled around 1650 BC, also describe a common bargaining pattern: a seller politely offers a gift before a real price is agreed, much as Ephron first offers the cave as a gift before Abraham insists on paying. Genesis 23's negotiation follows a recognizable, documented legal custom, not an invented scene.

Read Genesis 21–23 in your Bible first. Notice the well dispute and treaty at Beersheba in Genesis 21, and then read Genesis 22 slowly — pay close attention to the short exchange between Abraham and Isaac on the way to the mountain, and what Abraham names the place afterward. Finally, in Genesis 23, follow the negotiation at the city gate closely: what Ephron offers first, and what Abraham insists on instead. This part closes the volume, so notice how many earlier promises — land, descendants, a son — are touched again here.

A Deal Made in Public

Long before courthouses and written deeds as we know them today, land sales in the ancient Near East were often settled in a very public place: the city gate. Elders and other residents gathered near the gate for daily business, so a sale agreed there had built-in witnesses who could later confirm exactly what had been agreed. Surviving Hittite legal texts, gathered into a collection around 1650 BC, describe a recognizable pattern in these negotiations. A seller would often decline payment at first, offering the property as a gift, before the two sides settled on a real, agreed price. This was not rudeness or confusion; it was a polite ritual both sides expected before serious bargaining began. Scholars studying these legal texts note that this two-step pattern, a polite refusal followed by a firm price, appears across multiple cities and long stretches of time in the region. A single set of legal texts cannot describe every land deal ever made, but it does show that a public negotiation ending in an insisted-upon, fair price was a normal, documented way to close a serious deal.

1 What is the passage mostly about?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Main Idea

- (A) A full biography of one Hittite king
- (B) Evidence for a public, patterned land-sale custom
- (C) Instructions for building a modern courthouse
- (D) A description of a single city gate's shape

2 Where were many ancient land sales settled?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) Inside a private home
- ☐ (B) Beside a river crossing
- ☐ (C) At the city gate
- ☐ (D) Inside a royal palace

3 In this passage, “decline” most nearly means ____.

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Vocabulary in Context

- ☐ (A) to politely refuse at first
- ☐ (B) to shout loudly in anger
- ☐ (C) to write a formal letter
- ☐ (D) to travel to a new city

4 What evidence does the passage use for this land-sale pattern?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Detail

- ☐ (A) A single modern photograph
- ☐ (B) Hittite legal texts gathered around 1650 BC
- ☐ (C) A story with no historical source at all
- ☐ (D) A list of city names with no other detail

5 Why might a seller have offered the land as a gift before naming a price?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Inference

- ☐ (A) It was required by a law banning all sales
- ☐ (B) It meant the sale would never actually happen
- ☐ (C) It was an expected step before real bargaining
- ☐ (D) It showed the seller had no interest in payment

6 What kind of evidence does the passage rely on to make its point?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Evidence

- ☐ (A) A single scholar's personal guess
- ☐ (B) A modern retelling with no ancient sources
- ☐ (C) A legend with no physical evidence at all
- ☐ (D) Legal texts recovered from an ancient collection

7 According to the passage, what can and cannot these legal texts show?

SAT/TOEFL Reading · Synthesis

- ☐ (A) They show a documented pattern, not every deal made
- ☐ (B) They prove exactly how every deal in history was made
- ☐ (C) They cannot show anything reliable about the region
- ☐ (D) They show the exact price of every land sale ever

Writing Task — Part 8 “A Promise Kept”

In Genesis 21, Isaac is born exactly as God had promised, after a long wait. Think of a time you waited a long time for something, and it finally happened. What was it, and how did you feel when it finally came? 4–6 sentences. End by saying what the wait taught you.

You can start with: “One thing I waited a long time for was...”

Write your response on paper or in a notebook. This section is for print and take-home use; it is not scored online.
